In 1971, Norway declared the island a protected nature reserve. Today, there is virtually no sign of human activity at Bouvet, with the exception of a single weather station located at Nyrsya. This is the most common landing point on the island created by a rockslide in the 1950s. Wildlife of Bouvet Island

The past year has seen electricity prices across Europe soar by orders of magnitude, largely as a result of high gas prices. This has only been compounded by Russia's invasion of Ukraine. However, painful as this has been for end-users, canny generators of renewable electricity have been able to turn the situation to their advantage.
